VAN AUKEN SEES SUCCESS

Races Will Be of Highest Order and Mammoth Crowds Are Expected
When Gates Open Tuesday

Tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock the gates at the La Crosse Interstate fair grounds will be thrown open, to welcome one of the largest crowds that has ever been witnessed in La Crosse.

There will be plenty of sights to hold interest. The stock exhibits promise to be the best and largest in the history of the La Crosse Interstate Fair association. Every nook in the administration building and also in the exhibition rooms under the grandstand has been filled to overflowing and the races will be second to none. Secretary C. S. Van Auker having been successful in securing some of the fastest horseflesh ever put on at the local track.

On the "Pike" may be seen some of the best and most entertaining shows that a fair of this size can secure. The secretary has about twelve of the best shows on the road, and has turned down several in order to make his selection of the cleanest and best entertainment the public can possibly be given. He promises that all of them will give entire satisfaction. Among them are "Arnold's," with his trained animals, "Trip Through Dixie," "Turk Show," and stereoscopic views.

Some of the exhibits in the administration building this season are the most beautiful that have ever been executed and special attention has been paid to artistic display.

In the Exposition Building. In the east wing of the exposition building Adam Kroner has installed a pretty booth of stoves and hardware. The William Doerflinger Co. has a display of sewing machine beneath pretty draperies of curtains.

In the center of the exposition building may be seen a most beautiful agricultural display. The products are all from the Yellowstone valley near Billings, Mont., and have been brought here at a large expense by C. I. Gardner, who has had a crew of men at work on the pavilion-shaped exhibit for the past week. The finishing touches were put on this morning.

"A number of local people have gone to that section of the country to reside and others have purchased land out there," said Mr. Gardner this morning, "and we therefore, at the request of a number of people who reside here, but own land out there, have brought this beautiful exhibit to your city." The display comprises fruit of all kinds, and also grain and all products of agriculture. It makes a fitting display for the center of the building and will no doubt prove of great interest to a large number of visitors. Two of the local people who are interested in land there are Messrs. Fred Easton and R. E. Shepard.

Another pretty exhibit will be that of the Vote-Berger Telephone company, which has a booth with a white and pink background near the center of the building.

A unique display will be represented by the Nelson Carpet company which has papered and furnished three of the booths to resemble three rooms of a modern flat. The exhibit is a great attraction.

One of the largest and best displays in stoves that has ever been seen in the city has been put on in the south wing of the building by the Summit Stove foundry, stoves manufactured exclusively in this city. The stoves are of every size and design and show some of the best and most artistic stoves on the market anywhere in the country. Mr. Reed has received numerous compliments upon the exhibit.

Westby Bros. have put in a fine display of clothes. Martin Bros. of La Crosse have also installed a booth and Liesenfeld, the printer, has one of the nicest displays in his line ever seen in the city. The Gund Brewing company have secured their usual corner and the La Crosse Telephone company has installed a booth just east of it which may also be used as long distance by any visitors attending.

Other displays have been installed by Owen, Colby and the Bergh Piano company, who have one of the finest

KELLOGG GOES HARD AFTER MR. TILFORD OF STANDARD OIL

DECLARES MANHATTAN CO. WAS TAKEN OVER BY STANDARD

WILL BRING RAILROADS IN

Prosecutor Has Up His Sleeve Evidence Implicating Pennsylvania and N. Y. Central.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—In the suit for the dissolution of Standard Oil today, Examiner Kellogg, dissatisfied with the evidence brought out relative to the sale by Commodore Benedict and Brady of the Manhattan Oil company assailed Treasurer Tilford at the opening of the Standard hearing. Kellogg wants to prove that the Manhattan company went to Standard Oil instead of to the English syndicate. In a loud voice the prosecutor wanted to know why the Standard Oil gave the Chicago Gas company, then controlled by Benedict and Brady, a lucrative contract for supplies. Kellogg insisted that the contract was in consideration for the sale of the Manhattan property. The fact developed that Tilford himself signed the contract, which was ordered brought into court.

It was learned today that Kellogg has important evidence in his possession bearing on the part railroad rebates have played in the enormous profits of the corporation in the last eight years.

This phase of Mr. Kellogg's case is being held in reserve. Several days more will be occupied in testimony to show that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is practically the same corporation dissolved in 1892 on the ground it was an operation in restraint of trade, and that the present company is still doing business in Texas in spite of the fact that it was outlawed in that state at the time the Waters-Pierce Oil company, one of its subsidiary concerns, was barred from further operations there.

It is declared that Mr. Kellogg has in his possession documentary evidence tending to prove that aid was given by railroads, through rebates, to the Standard Oil company during its many rate wars with independent concerns—wars which almost invariably ended by the rival concern going to the wall and its plants and refineries being taken over by the New Jersey concern and either abandoned or operated as a part of the Standard system.

Officers of the Pennsylvania and New York Central have been subpoenaed.

Mr. Kellogg says that at least two weeks more and possibly three will be occupied in the taking of testimony here. The scene of the investigation will then be shifted possibly to Texas, although the place for the next hearing has not yet been definitely chosen.

RUSSIAN RADICALS SWEEP COUNTRY IN GREATEST VICTORY

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 23.—First returns from the elections for the third duma indicate a sweeping victory for the radicals.

It is expected complete results will show the radicals in controlling power and that the new duma will be even more irreconcilable to the government than the last one.

A hard struggle between the Czar and the radicals is expected today. Many are afraid to vote.

JAIL DELIVERY FOL- LOWED BY CAPTURE

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—In a running pistol fight, Stanley Wasalek, one of two prisoners who sawed out of the county jail in daylight yesterday, was captured by the police today. An extra guard has been placed around the cell of Constantine, in whose behalf it is believed the bars were cut.

The La Crosse Tribune.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 23.
(By J. C. Welliver.)

When Secretary Root sets out September 25 to pay a visit to Mexico he will undertake what will in all likelihood prove to be the most important mission to a foreign country he has attempted. It appears probable it will be productive of more important results than Mr. Root's Canadian visits and that, in some respects at least, it will be of more moment than the South American trip of the secretary of state. It is certain the trip, in view of the elaborate preparations made for Mr. Root's reception, and in view of the prospective meeting of Mr. Root and President Porfirio Diaz will be picturesque and spectacular. It will go far to complete the work begun by Mr. Root in his visit a year and more ago to South and Central America and in diplomatic circles it is the subject of

CONSTANTINE GUILTY; GIVEN A LIFE TERM

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 23.—Frank J. Constantine was convicted of murdering Mrs. Arthur W. Gentry in January, 1906, Saturday night and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. The verdict came dramatically. Constantine received it without so much as the flash of an eyelid, the quiver of a muscle, or an additional blush on his cheek.

THREE OTHER CASES NEARBY

P. A. Larson Secures Conviction of a St. Joseph Ridge Farmer and Threatens Others.

A flying inspection trip to western Wisconsin by Deputy State Dairy and Food Inspector P. A. Larson, Holmen, Wis., netted three violations of the law, prosecutions and pleas of guilty, one of which was secured in La Crosse county this morning. The other convictions were secured at Sparta, Wis., and Viroqua, Wis., in the last four days.

Joseph Rutz, a farmer on St. Joseph's Ridge, entered a plea of guilty, through his father, Adam Rutz, to a charge of having dirty and unsanitary milk cans in his possession before Judge Brindley this morning. The father paid a fine of $25 and costs, $25.79, for his son.

Inspector Larson had a sample of the filth found in the cans of Rutz. A brown sediment, showing the cans had not been cleaned, was presented in evidence. Inspector Larson averred that one year ago he had warned Rutz that his cans were dirty, and prosecution was probable if he did not use more sanitary measures in transporting his milk to the skim-

SARGENT DEMANDS PRACTICAL TALK

COMMISSIONER SAYS BRYAN AND BEVERIDGE RAMBLE

MUST CUT OUT GENERALITIES

Discussions of Labor Problem by Great Men Desirable, But They Should Not Flibuster

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 23.—Frank P. Sargent, commissioner of immigration, and former chief of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen, who has been a close follower of the joint debate between William J. Bryan and Senator Albert J. Beveridge, in the Reader magazine, today called on both disputants to drop generalities and do something that would aim at a practical solution of the problem, which must be sooner or later met by the American people.

"The general discussion of the problem by Mr. Bryan and Senator Beveridge," said Commissioner Sargent, "makes absorbing reading, and will be immensely helpful in awakening interest in this question in the great public. But what we want is action, from men who have such influence in their parties and less talk. When Mr. Bryan and Mr. Beveridge unite in an effort to convince capital and labor that their interests lie along the same path, that profit to both can be had by meeting half way, that more is lost to a labor union by loss of wages in a strike, than can be gained by the inevitable compromise, that more is lost to a manufacturer by the closing of his shop,

LONGWORTH MAY RUN FOR MAYOR

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 23.—Congressman Longworth today would not deny that he is willing to accept the republican mayoralty nomination here. When informed that friends are booming him for mayor, and then for United States senator, he said he wanted time before talking to get in touch with politics. He denied in toto the alleged Honolulu interview in which he is quoted as saying that President Roosevelt might accept another nomination.

TRIAL OF SENATOR BORAH COMMENCED IN BOISE TONAY

U. S. SENATOR AND EAU CLAIRE, WIS., MEN INVOLVED

STEUNENBERG WAS INDICTED

Announced in Court That Name of Murdered Governor Was Withheld During Haywood Trial

BOISE, Sept. 23.—District Attorney Ruck in examining today the veniremen summoned for a jury to try Senator W. E. Borah on a charge of being implicated in land frauds, announced that the late Governor Steunenberg was indicted with Borah under the name of "John Doe," but the fact was concealed because of the effect it might have on the Haywood trial. On the government's side appears a great array of legal talent. The government's case will center about Senator Borah and the name of Steunenberg.

Senator Borah came strongly into public notice when he acted as one of the principal prosecutors for the state of Idaho at the recent trial of William D. Haywood, secretary of the Western Federation of Miners. He is charged with conspiring to defraud the government out of title of 17,250 acres of Idaho timber land.

Twelve other persons have been indicted with Senator Borah, but he will be the first to face a federal jury, having demanded a trial prior to the time he shall present his credentials as a senator next December in Washington.

Probe District Attorney's Acts. The conduct of the district attorney before the March grand jury, which returned the indictment against Senator Borah and others, is now under investigation.

It is charged that the district attorney refused to leave the grand jury room one day until the indictments were signed. This charge has been denied in the counter affidavits of nine former grand jurors, who say that the timber land cases were not being discussed when the district attorney was requested to depart.

The indictments against Senator Borah and the twelve others charge that they entered into a conspiracy with 108 residents of Boise whereby the latter were to take up timber land claims of 100 acres each. They were to pay the minimum price to the government an dollar, when the claims were finally approved, to transfer the land to the Barber Lumber company, whose principal officers are residents of Wisconsin.

James T. Barber and Samuel G. Moon of Eau Claire, Wis., are among those indicted. It is claimed that the 108 entrymen swore that they were taking out the claims for their own use and benefit for speculation.

GRAND JURY OCT 1 TO INDICT THE BEEF TRUST FINANCIERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—A grand jury will be drawn Oct. 1 to consider evidence against the beef trust. It is predicted that men high in the financial world will be indicted.

WINONA MAN HUNTS FOR SON

WINONA, Minn., Sept. 23.—J. D. Wright, of Lafayette, Ind., has been in Winona looking for his son, J. D. Wright, Jr., who has not been heard from since last May.

Last year the young man was employed in a wholesale house in St. Paul, but at the beginning of this year he went out on the road doing newspaper contract work.

On May 20 he wrote a letter home from Tomah, Wis., saying that he was on his way to Winona and would be home in a few days. Not a word has been received from him since.

Mr. Wright found the young man's trunk at Marshfield, Wis. The father fears that he has met with foul play.

TRUMAN SHEPARD DIES.

Word has been received in the city of the death of Mr. Truman H. Shepherd of Denver, Col., who died suddenly at his home in Denver yesterday after a brief illness from congestion of the lungs. Mrs. T. H. Shepherd is a sister of Mrs. A. G. Nevins and Mrs. A. Ryder of this city. Mrs. Nevins and Mrs. Ryder left on the noon Milwaukee for Denver to attend the funeral.

PEOPLE MUST PAY FOR PURE STUFF

CLAIM HIGH FEED PRICES ARE RESPONSIBLE

ALL DEALERS IN THE SCHEME

T. Torgerson of North Side Admits the Plan to Raise Prices—Cream to Go Up Ten Cents

Milk dealers in the city are perfecting a plan in which they intend to raise the price of cream and milk after the first of October.

At present the price of milk is 3 and 6 cents per quart and cream is selling at 20 cents per quart, but the dealers claim that they are losing money this way, as the price of feed and other expenses are so much higher this year they must raise the price of milk.

Mr. T. Torgerson, 2108 Georgia street, a dealer, when seen on the matter, stated that a movement was on foot by the dealers to raise the price and when asked the reason, stated that feed now costs twice as much as last year, and a raise is necessary to make expenses.

He said that if the people wanted pure milk they would have to pay the price for it.

Cream is scarce in La Crosse. Dealers are unable to supply the demand, and this is an added cause for the advance to 30 cents per quart in the price.

Many of the dealers in the city and farmers who have been in the habit of bringing cream and milk into the city have sold their cows and will discontinue the milk trade because of the advance.

A meeting of distributors is to be called the first of next week.

TO END OPERATORS STRIKE IN 10 DAYS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—In an address to the telegraphers' union here President Small declared that in his opinion the strike would be terminated in ten days.

TELLS OF KISS AND SUICIDE

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 21.—Here is Frank Constantine's story of Mrs. Gentry's death and the causes that led up to it:

"Mrs. Gentry once threw her arms around my neck and kissed me. I kissed and accented her."

"I took her to the theater alone once."

"She consulted me once about getting a divorce from her husband."

"The day she killed herself I had told her I was going to New York. She was in my room making my bed and I was shaving. She begged me to take her with me, saying that she could not stand it to live longer with her husband and pleading that in New York she could continue her art studies."

"I told her I could not take her because of a scandal. She continued to beg and later went into her own room. When I had finished shaving I went in to see her, and saw her sitting in a chair holding a razor in her hand behind her back."

"Again she begged to go with me and again I refused. When she saw that I meant what I said, she stood up and with a sudden movement drew the razor across her throat."

"I caught her in my arms, told her to hold her hand over the wound, and half carried her to the door of the flat below, left her there and ran for a doctor. I was afraid to go back."

Constantine refused in a panic when asked to illustrate how the woman killed herself.

STEAMER SINKS,
SIX ARE DROWNEDBIG COALER GOES TO PIECES ON LAKE SUPERIOR

STEERING GEAR IS SMASHED

Breaks During Gale, and Vessel Goes Down—Captain Loses Life With Five Men of Crew

GRAND MARAIS, Mich., Sept. 23.—Capt. Randall and five sailors of the steamer Alexander Nimick lost their lives Saturday night when their ship stranded on the south shore of Lake Superior and went to pieces in the heavy northwest gale. The remaining eleven men of the crew succeeded in making their way safely through the surf to the shore.

Steering Gear Disabled. The Nimick, heavily laden with coal, was fighting its way up the lake through the storm when the steering gear became disabled. Rendered unmanageable, the big ship was forced steadily toward the land, finally striking at a point thirteen miles west of White Fish Point. The life boats were at once lowered, but the one containing Capt. Randall and the five men became swamped in the heavy seas, and all quickly sank, overcome by the dashing surf and the cold.

The place where the vessel struck is surrounded by an almost uninhabited wilderness, and the rescued men had to go far to seek shelter.

Last Report From Soo.

The last report from the Nimick was from Sault Ste. Marie, where she passed up through the locks at 11:30 Thursday morning. A northwest gale has prevailed on Lake Superior for several days past, and the ship remained in shelter behind White Fish Point. When the storm finally subsided the steamer ventured out, although the sea was still running high, only to be dashed to destruction a few miles away.

TRY BANK CASHIER ON THEFT CHARGE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 23.—(Special.)—The most important case to come before the federal grand jury at the term opening with this week, is that of Thomas Coghill, formerly cashier of the bank of Seymour, Wis., who was arrested three months ago on the charge of embezzlement. His shortage, which was estimated at $40,000, has been made good by directors and other stockholders, and the bank is still paying 4 per cent on time deposits. Wheat speculating will be revealed when the case comes up. There are rumors that Coghill will plead guilty.

Further inquiry into illegal liquor sales in northern Wisconsin will be made.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR SCHULTZ CASE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 23.—(Special.)—When the supreme court resumes its sittings at Madison at 10 a. m. tomorrow, it will have before it the case of Fred C. Schultz, former newspaper reporter, now serving eighteen months for bribery. Another important case is that which will determine whether cigarettes and little cigars are brothers. Judge Neelan of this city, left the decision to the supreme court, after trying a test case here on the subject.

LADYSMITH, Wis., Sept. 21.—Almost continuous rains since Sunday night have swollen the Flambeau river and its tributaries until it is the highest that it has been for years and the dam of the Menasha Paper company at Port Arthur, four miles below Ladysmith, is in grave danger of destruction.

A HOME REMEDY

Endorsed by Leading Druggists As Excellent for Stomach Troubles.

The manager for a prescription drug store in Chicago, a store that fills more prescriptions than any other drug store in the country, says that the following prescription is positively the best that they ever filled for stomach trouble:

Compound Tincture of Cinchona, one ounce; Prosepe Compound, one ounce, and Sherry Wine, half a pint; mix and take in teaspoonful doses before each meal and at bed time in a wine glass of water.

He states that it is the Prosepe Compound that does the work. This preparation supplies the stomach with Pancreatic Juice, and this is what digests what you eat, and with the help of the greatest vegetable tonics known to science the results are marvelous.

Any druggist can fill this simple prescription.

LUMBER KING MAY BUY DIETZ FARM

OFFER IS MADE BY FREDERICK WEYERHAUSER

OLD CLAIM IS PAID AT LAST

Final Settlement of Thornapple Dam Trouble Appears Imminent — Wages Paid for Watching

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Sept. 23.—Information received here from W. W. Dietz, brother of John F. Dietz of Cameron Dam, shows that there was good ground for the report recently published to the effect that the Weyerhaeuser people had arrived at a settlement with John F. Dietz, the defender of Cameron dam.

While it is insisted that the Weyerhaeuser people have not bought Dietz's Cameron dam rights, they have settled an old claim of the settlers which might create a better feeling between the parties at interest and lead to a final settlement of the Thornapple trouble.

What the Weyerhaeusers have finally done is to settle the claim of Dietz for wages while he was in the employ of the company in watching at the Price dam.

Dietz still retains his homestead and the logs of the lumber company remain above Cameron dam in the Thornapple river.

The following statement has been made by W. W. Dietz, regarding the matter: "I was at Thornapple Monday, when Moses paid John F. Dietz $1,717, his wages for watching the Price dam. Moses was an agent direct from Frederick Weyerhaeuser and made him an offer for his farm which was rejected."

BADGER BRIEFS

RACINE.—The first case to be tried at the November term of circuit court will be that of the state of Wisconsin against William Dillon, charged with the murder of Jacob C. Best of Milwaukee.

EAU CLAIRE.—The recent heavy rains are bringing relief to the local saw mills and the paper mill. The water has raised several feet and driving crews have been sent north to take advantage of the raise in getting down logs.

NEENAH.—The first step toward putting the lid on in Neenah was taken when the council issued orders to the police to prohibit raffles in saloons, the operation of wine rooms and the opening of saloon doors Sunday mornings.

BELOIT.—A monument is to be put up by Beloit college students to Henry D. Smith, who lost his life at Lake Geneva last year. He was the field secretary and did more than any other person to build up the membership of the classes.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN.—Joseph Benn, aged about 50 years, accidentally blew the top off his head at his home in Viola on Friday, as he reached for a loaded shotgun which stood behind a door, and with which he intended to shoot a couple of chickens in the barnyard.

EAU CLAIRE.—Next Tuesday night the common council will hold a special meeting to consider the matter of revoking the license of Fred Scharle, the proprietor of the Fox house buffet and hotel, which institution has acquired an unsavory reputation through recent court hearings.

KENOSHA.—The efforts of the Kenosha, Chicago, and Milwaukee Electric railway company to get a right of way through Kenosha by condemnation have been badly interfered with on account of the action of the Kenosha Electric railway company making a fight for one piece of property in the center of the right of way outlined by the other company. The local railway company lost the fight in the circuit court, and it has now filed an appeal to the Supreme court.

RACINE.—In a gas explosion at the Mitchell Motor Car plant two men were seriously burned. James Clunie, a filler, about the hands, arms, neck and head, and Engineer Ott was also burned about the head and face. The gas burst from a producer and before the men could get out of the way the flame struck them.

KENOSHA.—Jas. Grano, a Greek residing in Chicago, was arrested at Kenosha, charged with hunting without a license. He had killed two small ducks, and when he pleaded guilty to the charge in Justice court he was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and the costs of the action. In addition the game warden confiscated the game.

RACINE.—There was a bad scare at the State street bridge when the structure was swung to permit a schooner to pass through. Upon being closed a large electric car started across. When the east end was reached the bridge commenced to sink and went down six inches. The car was loaded with many passengers, and there was alarm for fear the car would go through into the river.

NEENAH.—Otto Erdman, a well to do farmer, is lying unconscious at his home with a fractured skull, the result of a twenty foot fall from a haymow. He was to have been married on Monday. Olga Christofferson was struck on the chin by a stray bullet while returning home from work. William Braemer fractured his right leg in a fall from a tree; blood poisoning has resulted; he will die. Donald Block fell out of a tree while gathering nuts, sustaining a compound fracture of the right leg.

BIG SCANDAL AT CAPITAL RUMORED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—A rumor is current tonight that a great scandal had developed in the War department rivaling in many respects the postoffice graft cases. Acting Secretary Oliver said he knew nothing of it; but that in all probability what was referred to was the purchase by the quartermaster's department of some life-boat handling apparatus that was claimed to be the patent and property of another. This person, he said, had complained to the department in regard to it. He said that the whole subject was investigated thoroughly and that no improper conduct had been shown.

POCAHONTAS PASTOR WILL BE HONORED

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 21.—Judge Ingram has authorized St. John's church, famous for its historic associations, to proceed with the plans for a memorial to Rev. Alexander Whittaker. Mr. Whittaker was one of the pioneer Episcopalian rectors in the early days of Virginia, and was the pastor of Pocahontas. It was he who baptized her and performed the ceremony at her marriage.

St. John's church was the scene of Patrick Henry's famous speech. The municipality sought to prevent the vestrymen of the church from erecting a monument to Whittaker, and the matter was taken into the courts.

BURTON FEARS JOHNSON PLAN

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 21.—Responding to a suggestion of Mayor Johnson, Congressman Burton, republican candidate for mayor, refused to agree to file a statement ten days before election of the names of contributors to the campaign fund.

Congressman Burton said: "I can think of no reason why I should do this. There is no law which requires it. Up to date I have received one check for $100, which I shall turn over to the county executive committee, so I do not see that I have anything to report. It is asked that I file this ten days before election, but it is possible that I will not have received any contributions by then. I will not, however, accept any contributions from any public service corporations in or out of Cleveland."

SLAYER GETS OUT OF TUSCOLA JAIL

TUSCOLA, Ill., Sept. 21.—A sensational jail delivery in which a convicted murderer and two other prisoners secured their liberty occurred here. A revolver, held by Harry Allp, self-confessed slayer of Edward Stillmons of Galton, Ill., prevented other prisoners from giving alarm while Harry Spaulding and William Brooke, both held for misdemeanors, made their escape by means of two blankets tied together and lowered from a second story window. How Allp secured the revolver is a mystery. After his two comrades followed and the men disappeared in the woods. Bloodhounds, obtained from Decatur, gave chase, followed by an armed posse, but the men have not been recaptured.

BECKER GOES TO VISIT DIETZ

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Sept. 21.—Sherburn A. Becker, the "boy" mayor of Milwaukee, left here in an automobile as the guest of Dr. E. E. Nussle to visit John F. Dietz, "the outlaw of Cameron dam," whose reported victory over the corporation with which he has been in controversy for several years has been denied. Mayor Becker wants to hear Dietz tell his own story.

The mayor was equipped with heavy walking boots, a sweater and a heavy suit. He carried with him an abundance of magazines for Dietz and also fishing tackle, as he intends to fish in the famous Thornapple river. He lamented the fact that he had no hunting license and therefore could not do any hunting. Mayor Becker said that he was unarmed, as he believed this to be safest for a person who wanted a peaceable talk with Dietz.

If the average man's ship were to come in he would have gone out the day before.

A CORPORATION BOOMERANG

The country is getting tired of the telegraphers strike, but contrary to the hopes of the telegraph companies the resentment of the public is directed, not at the strikers, but at the corporations.

Strikers are not new experiences in the United States, and the people have come to understand them, to "size up" strike situations, not upon the basis of what either side claims, but by reading between the lines.

The telegraph service is crippled today worse than at any time during the strike. Were the telegraph companies and news companies to frankly admit this, public displeasure would be less than it is under their present method, which is to claim that the wires are working normally. This deceit is understood and resented, and it is therefore valueless to accomplish the purpose for which it is indulged in.

The telegraph companies could resume with full facilities in six hours, were they to accept any reasonable method of arbitration. "We have nothing to arbitrate," they say. That means, of course, that their position is so fair and right that no arbitrator could do otherwise than sustain them at every point. That being the case, how inexpensive to them arbitration would be? It would mean vindication, and the cessation of the strike. That is, it would mean these things provided the board of arbitration was fair, and surely the telegraph companies will concede that men able and honest can be had to act on such a board.

The companies will not arbitrate. They know that the public is bearing the brunt of loss and inconvenience occasioned by the strike. They plan, as other monopolists have planned, to let public disgust and discontent become a force to impel the strikers to surrender, thinking the world is against them.

But the public understands. The plan is working all right so far as generating public displeasure is concerned, but the popular anger is directed, not at the men, but at the corporations. The time is not far distant when this feeling will wax so strong as to compel a settlement, whether by voluntary arbitration or through government intervention, matters not.

If La Crosse has made as good an impression on the cities in southern Minnesota as those cities have made on La Crosse, a mutual admiration

MEN OF NOTE

Thomas A. Edison

Thomas Alva Edison, the noted inventor of electrical appliances, was born at Milan, O., February 11th, 1847, and was given the rudiments of a common school education. At twelve years of age he was a newsboy on the Grand Trunk Railway. Then Edison studied telegraphy and worked as an operator in many parts of the United States and Canada. Some of his important inventions naturally referred to his work as a telegraph operator and among his first successes were the automatic machine and the quadruple and sextuple telegraphic machines. His fame obtained for him from the French government the honor of appointment as a Commander of the Legion of Honor. Edison was the chief consulting engineer of the big St. Louis Exposition.

society may soon be expected to ask for a charter. La Crosse people who attended the excursions in that quarter are "plum nutty" over the live and thriving populace they met.

Tomorrow is La Crosse Day at the La Crosse Interstate fair, and it is expected that the city will make holiday on the occasion. One of the best evidences of the liberal public spiritedness that characterizes the people of this community is their ever readiness to respond to the demands of occasions of this sort. Let's all close up and make La Crosse Day, 1907, a hummer.

That dates were so arranged as to prevent any organized recognition of the Viroqua fair by La Crosse civic bodies this year is causing many expressions of regret among the merchants and business men of this city, and it is asserted without reservation that Viroqua will be made the star objective point during the fair period next year.

The suggestion that the socialists will make Haywood their presidential candidate during the coming campaign is expressive of the lack of sobriety that characterizes that party. Fanaticism so unthinking is bound to keep a not entirely illogical political propaganda in bad repute.

NO STEP BACKWARD.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Secretary Bonaparte's suggestion that habitual criminals be condemned to death upon a fourth conviction will receive no support. It is contrary to the spirit of the age, which is everywhere in favor of less capital punishment instead of more. In some countries where capital punishment has not yet been abolished by law it has fallen into disuse through executive action; in no country has there been an addition to the list of crimes punished by death. No legislature in the union would pass a law such as Secretary Bonaparte suggests.

The idea that something ought to be done to protect the public from habitual criminals is a good one and a fit corollary to Mrs. Ballington Booth's principle that most criminals can be redeemed if subjected to the right influences in prison and given a helping hand when out of prison. Save every man capable of reclamation, shut up those who are beyond reasonable hope, and the world will be a much more agreeable place for those who are not criminals.

Hanging does not reform a man. Neither does it protect society any more thoroughly than does any other form of punishment which keeps the inveterate criminal away from his fellow men. Whether or not it is true, as some criminologists assert, that there is a large class of criminals who are really not responsible for their actions, since their mal-formed brains or other physical characteristics make it impossible for them to lead normal lives, it is certain that some criminals will inevitably relapse into crime at the first opportunity. They should be pitied, but it is best both for them and for the community that they should be imprisoned.

The death penalty ought not to be abolished. It should always remain in the power of a jury to punish revolting crime by ending the life of the offender. With the increasing mercifulness of juries the presumption is that that power would not be used so often as it should be. But it is useless to advocate the extension of capital punishment. The tide is running the other way. If Secretary Bonaparte had recommended the life imprisonment of professional irreclaimable criminals he would have found many agreeing with him.

OF HUMAN INTEREST

In this cold and variable climate when we never know what a day will bring forth as regards weather, when our clothes fairly stick to us one day and we shiver the next, it behooves us to be very careful about catching cold. Colds caught at this season of the year are liable to be most stubborn. Personally I think the chilly part of the fall, "between seasons," where we have not yet got out our winter garments and where the winter stock of fuel is not yet in evidence, is the most aggravating time of the year. Especially is this true in the houses that are heated by stoves—a pretty unsatisfactory way if there are many rooms and halls. Where coal stoves are used, nice as they are on a bitter winter's night when going full blast and where they seem almost the ideal heat, they cannot well be used in October and the early fall, and either some other stove has to be put up in their place or folks try to get along a few weeks with the heat of the kitchen range.

A furnace does away with that chilliness of rooms in the fall and spring, and although they are generally expensive things, still you have the comfort. Of course the ideal heat is "city heat" and in the end the cheapest, I believe.

As to clothes it really seems to me that we need to be dressed warmer just now than usual. I think we feel the cold more than later on. At the station the other night to meet the midnight train, I noticed that everyone that got off seemed almost perished, huddled and shivering nearly all of them sought carriages.

On a right snappy night in the winter probably the same amount of discomfort would not be experienced. It seems never safe in this northwest climate to be without the means of providing ourselves with a fire and extra clothes if the occasion requires and especially is this true where there are little children.

SWINGING BACK.

(Jefferson County Union.)

The Pittsburgh incident when Senator La Follette was obliged to retire from Carnegie hall where he was delivering an address to the Teachers' association on "Representative Government" is full of suggestion. The senator started to give the teachers an account of how the United States senators from Pennsylvania voted on certain questions. He did this to illustrate how unrepresentative of the people these way-up leaders are. At once a protest arose from the city superintendent of schools, who is a machine politician, against giving the teachers such information. He said it was partisan politics. Senator La Follette denied the accusation and said it was the simple truth of history. The upshot was that the senator left the hall and finished his address on the steps in the street and the teachers followed him in a body.

It seems to be a most bitter medicine for our political aristocracy to take this reading of their record. A large number of leaders of both the republican and democratic parties have come to believe themselves to be the rulers of the people by grace of the rich corporations, the next thing to the so-called "divine right of kings." So where Senator La Follette holds up the record there is writhing and contortion in the corporation camp. What a lesson this incident teaches. How far we have drifted from the doctrines of our fathers. What a travesty it is to call this nation a democracy when it is estimated almost a crime to tell the truth about the record a senator makes.

But the country is "Swinging Back." The representatives of corporate wealth have so long held the reins of government that it makes them sick high unto death when the light is turned on. Senator La Follette is doing a grand work in his public lectures. The common people hear him gladly. Like the Pittsburgh teachers they are glad to have the dark and noisome atmosphere of machine politics and come into the sunlight of the simple truth. This government is still democratic and it is growing rapidly more so.

Illinois Central directors at a meeting on Wednesday exonerated President Harahan from the charges preferred against him by Mr. Stuyvesant Fish, deposed president of the road, to-wit: that he had sent dispatches over the Union Pacific lines to E. H. Harriman, relating to the intimate affairs of the Illinois Central. Fish also charged that Harahan and some of the directors of the road are tools of Harriman. It was this charge that resulted in knocking Harahan down.

Now a committee of the directors decides, after a careful investigation, that Fish was wrong and Harahan a gentleman even if he is no good at self-defense. Whether Fish is convinced by the report he did not state.

POPE'S ENCYCLICAL AIDS LIBERALISM

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 23. — "The church is dead. No creed is good enough for acceptance except the 1907 creed," declared Professor Nathaniel Schmidt, the biblical scholar, in an address here. Dr. Schmidt declared that the pope's recent encyclical warning the Roman Catholic church of the peril of its existence and the tendency to liberalism and heterodox creeds involved, instead of retarding the progress of liberal thought, pointed out the way to the organization of religious liberalism.

FASHION HINTS

5785 Girl's Coat, 6 to 12 years.

GIRL'S COAT 5785.
To be made in three-quarter or full length.

The loose coat can be slipped on over any frock easily and readily is one that every girl needs. Illustrated is a charming attractive little model that is particularly well suited to between seasons and the early autumn and which can be made from a variety of materials. In the illustration Bordeaux red broadcloth is trimmed with velvet and stitched with belding silk, but blue, brown, tan color and white all are in vogue for the dressy coats while for those of school wear mixed materials are perhaps a bit more serviceable. The cape is becoming and graceful and adds largely to the dressy effect of the little wrap but is not obligatory as it can be omitted if a plainer one is needed.

The coat is made with fronts and back. The sleeves are moderately full and slightly gathered at their lower edges where they are finished with bands to which the roll-over cuffs are attached. The cape is arranged over the coat and the collar is attached to the edges of both. There is a choice allowed of three-quarter or full length sleeves.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (10 years) is 4 1/2 yards 27, 3 1/2 yards 44 or 2 3/4 yards 52 inches wide with 5/8 yards of velvet to trim as illustrated. The pattern 5785 is cut in sizes for girls of 6, 8, 10 and 12 years of age and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage which insures more prompt delivery.)

A TRUSTED DOMESTIC.

(Philadelphia Record.)

One of the most remarkable financial transactions recorded in years in this or probably any other city took place on Thursday last. An elderly colored woman, poorly dressed, entered one of the large banks in the financial district and insisted upon seeing the president himself. No one else would do, and the attendant was eventually obliged to conduct her to that official's private office. Arrived there, the old woman with much simplicity of manner, asked whether the financial disturbance was past, and was smilingly assured that it was. Thereupon, to the amazement of the financier, she drew from the folds of her dress a bank book and twenty-six bills, each of the denomination of $1,000, and asked that they be placed to the credit of her "master's" account. The book was in the name of one of the oldest and wealthiest customers of the bank, a retired and superannuated merchant, who nowadays rarely leaves his house, but who had every confidence in an old domestic.

THE WARSHIP'S DRESS SUIT

(Army and Navy Life.)

Few realize the number of flags carried by a warship, nor the cost of all the gay bunting which flutters from mast to mast at holiday time. In addition to fleet communication, necessary during all forms of maneuvers in home water, the ship must be equipped with an extensive array of flags stored on board for various forms of ceremonial and official occasions. This "dress suit" outfit of bunting, therefore, consists of 250 different flags, the material and making of which cost just $2,500. Each ship is entitled to a new flag equipment every three years, though a flagship will often require a new set of signals, owing to their constant use and handling, in about a year.

EX-PRESIDENT IS BETTER; WORKING

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 23. — Grover Cleveland's health has improved so much in the last week that he has resumed work. Every day he devotes one or two hours to writing and to business affairs.

"Mr. Cleveland is still troubled with the complaint that laid him up during the summer and held him here throughout the season," Dr. J. M. Carnochan, his physician, said today, "but he is now so much improved that he is resuming his routine work. Alarming reports that recently have been spread are entirely without foundation. Mr. Cleveland is not in a dangerous condition."

BASIL KING

(Copyrighted by Harper & Bros.)

CHAPTER I.

As it was the entr'acte of the opera the lobby of the Casino was filled with a gay and noisy cosmopolitan crowd. All the more, therefore, was it a proof of the celebrity to which Paul Trafford had attained that his entry caused a distinct and general thrill of curiosity. A man who was reckoned the richest in the world could not be other than an object of supreme interest to people whose first cry was money. The fact that he had arrived at Monte Carlo the day before had been as much a topic of conversation as if he had been King Edward or the Czar. Now that he appeared and was recognized, princes, duchesses, and adventurers instinctively fell back a little, making way for him and his party to pass on. Here and there some one claimed the privilege of his acquaintance, and bowed before his nod as before a pope's benediction. Those who followed in his train were besieged with greetings. Mr. and Mrs. George Trafford were actually cut off from the procession and made prisoners of war. The Duke of Wiltshire only maintained his position at Miss Trafford's side by being rude to people, and turning his back on them.

As for Paula herself, she passed on, between her father and the man she had almost promised to marry, unmoved by the stir she created. She was aware of it, but she was used to it. Having been so constantly her father's companion during the last four years, she had come to take public attention as a matter of course. At first the interest she inspired had been impersonal—the interest inseparable from one whom the American press called "the greatest heiress on earth." Her fortune was compared with that of the Queen of Holland, and of the daughters of the Rothschild and Rockefeller families, but that was all. Now, however, at twenty-two, she was emerging from the golden mist that had surrounded her, and was assuming personality. The flowering of her beauty had done something towards this. People had found it superfuous that a girl with so much money should have a complexion like rose-petals floating in milk. They resented the fact that her figure had needless grace, and her face an expression of appeal which there was no resisting. Rumors of marriage sprang up wherever she appeared. The girl knew these things without taking actual account of them, or letting them form part of her daily consciousness. At this minute she could ignore the fact that her looks were being criticised and her income appraised, in gazing about her, with amusement, at the novelty of the scene.

"We're now in one of those spots of No-man's-land," said the Duke of Wiltshire, as they entered the first saloon, "which modern civilization likes to set apart as cities of refuge from the rule of caste and conventionality."

Paula turned her soft eyes slowly towards him. They were blue eyes inherited from her father's mother—the eyes in which faith is mingled with superstition, in which self-devotion has a dash of insincerity, and in which laughter never wholly hides the mist of tears. Between the brows there was a tiny, perpendicular furrow, like that of a person endeavoring to see through the rights and wrongs of things, and conscientiously trying to be sure. It was this puzzled, inquiring look that the Duke of Wiltshire specially loved in her. It gave him an opportunity for the kind of explanatory work in which he excelled in the House of Lords.

"Haven't you noticed," he went on, in answer to Paula's unspoken interrogation, "that in all the great capitals of the world—London, Paris, and New York, for instance—there are two or three expensive restaurants and luxurious hotels, where on crossing the very threshold one steps outside all the limitations of nationalities, moral prejudice, and class distinction?"

"That's very true," Paul Trafford said, in corroboration. He liked to listen to Wiltshire's reflection on subjects that he himself had never thought about. "He's always widening your mind in some direction where you never looked before," he remarked, now and then, to Paula. The girl was glad to believe it. It was one more attraction of mind, where physical charms were so lacking. It was one more explanation of her willingness to marry him. She liked him. "No one could help liking him," she often told herself, and yet as they moved slowly along amid the crowd, with so many eyes upon them, she regretted the fact that he was shorter than herself, and that he had this air of hopeless mediocrity. The men of her own family were all equipped for command. Her father, who had been a New England farmer's son, and himself a farmer's boy, overtopped most men by a head, and was undeniably handsome. Even her cousin George, who was big and lumbering, had something dominating about him. It seemed strange to her, therefore, that this English duke, the head of the illustrious house of Holroyd, the descendant of a line whose good looks had helped to make Holbein, Vandeyck, and Reynolds famous, should have been sent into the world by the great capricious Mother with the seal of the commonplace indelicately set upon him. She could not stifle in herself the knowledge that she was sorry for this; and yet as her glance took in once more the details of his dull-blue eyes, his stubby, sandy beard, and the stocky fig-

Here's to the flashing axe
That cleared a glorious way
For the men who fought and wisely wrought
A road for an empire's sway!

Hark to the mighty crash—
Its echoes are sounding still—
That brought the trees to the sturdy knees
Which were backed by an iron will.

Hark to the children's cry,
In fancy heard today,
When the red man yelled and
The rifle held the ruthless foe at bay.

Rifle, and axe, and spade,
Honor, and trust in God—
These were the tools that made
The road that a nation trod.

Thus have the men of the West
Sprung from a gallant page,
And the power to hew, to dare and do
Is their priceless right of heritage.

Proud should the children be
That their father's sires were men

Why He Knew.

A witness was being examined as to the sanity of one of the inmates of the asylum.

"You hold that this inmate is insane, do you?" a lawyer asked.
"I do," was the firm reply.
"Why are you so sure?"
"The man," the witness said, "goes about asserting that he is Santa Claus."

"And," said the lawyer, "you hold do you, that when a man goes about asserting that he is Santa Claus, it's a clear proof of his insanity?"
"Why?"

"Because," said the witness, in a loud indignant voice, "I happen to be Santa Claus myself." — The Argonaut.

Freeport tacked a final nail in the 1907 Wisconsin league pennant Sunday, in the closing game of the season, and even though Wausau still claims the flag on wrong decisions, there seems small likelihood that the Illinoisans will not be entitled to keep the rag.

Wausau lost a game on Saturday, which was bad at a critical time, while Freeport took three of the final series from Madison.

The standings shown at the top of this column are what The Tribune believes to be correct, allowing just protests, and it will probably be the nearest to what the result will be after the annual meeting of the board of directors, when the pennant will be awarded. This meeting is to be held the second Tuesday in October, in the city winning the pennant.

Whatever adjustments are to be made will be made by the directors at this time. It is likely that La Crosse will protest several of the Freeport games, while Wausau has several kicks coming which she proposes to see adjusted.

The state league has seen as pretty a pennant race as is afforded in the big leagues, and there remains no question of the reorganization of the league next year upon the same basis, with the exception that Freeport may drop out, and Beloit be substituted.

Idle Talk Is About.
There is some talk, principally in Freeport where La Crosse is not liked, of reorganizing the league next year upon a basis to leave this city out in the cold. This talk, however, has probably been started because of the part taken by La Crosse in talk of expelling the rioters from good baseball company.

This city was, as a matter of fact, one of the leaders three years ago in the organization of the league, former President Powers of Chicago having found his strongest support here. It therefore is silly to consider a Wisconsin league without the two pennant-winners as a mainstay of the organization.

There may be some radical changes as to the officers list in the 1908 league, but that La Crosse will again be one of the strong contenders for the pennant is assured—and with "Pink" Hawley as the manager, if he will accept the place.

POLICE STOP THE FOOTBALL CONTEST

GROUNDS USED WITHOUT ANY OFFICIAL PERMISSION

LOCKS ARE BROKEN OPEN

And President Elliot of the Baseball Association Sends Police to Take Players' Names

Owing to some misunderstanding between the manager of the second high school football team and the directors of the La Crosse Baseball association, the football game played between the Third ward and the Second High school team Saturday afternoon was interrupted in the last part of the last half, by the police.

According to a statement made by President Elliot of the baseball association, the manager of the high school team saw him Friday and asked for permission to use the grounds. Mr. Elliot told him that the directors would hold a meeting Friday night and that he could call him up by phone the next day and see what was to be done. At the meeting of the directors it was decided to allow the high school to play four games on the grounds and charge them $15 per game for the use of the grounds.

The manager of the team failed to call up, according to Mr. Elliot, but took the team onto the field without any authority whatever. Accordingly the police were notified and they proceeded to the grounds where the game was stopped and the names of all of the players taken down.

According to Mr. Elliot the lock on the gate was broken and a portion of the fence on the west side of the grounds was torn down. The football players deny all knowledge of this.

As yet just what will be done about the matter has not been settled, but in all probability some compromise will be made between the players and the baseball association and the matter will be dropped.

It is not thought probable that this will affect the use of the grounds by the High school, as the team was not the regular High school team, but a "second" team.

The score was 10 to 5 in favor of the High school seconds, although the game was not finished.

The encampment took a decided stand to give widows of old soldiers who have died since the war a higher pension. At present the widow receives $8 if her husband died since the war and the encampment asks that this be increased to $12.

ODD FELLOWS SHOW BIG GAIN

During the year 1906 the Independent Order of Odd Fellows made its largest gain in membership, according to the report of the grand sire of the sovereign grand lodge at St. Paul. The sovereign grand lodge session was attended for a short time by Richard Hoe, grand secretary of Wisconsin jurisdiction, as part of his vacation. He predicts that the increase will be much greater this year.

On Dec. 31, 1906, the society had a total membership of 1,362,310, which is a gain of 84,245 members during the year. There were 193,836 encampment members at the end of the fiscal year, an increase of 8,476 during the year. The Patriarchs Militant had 20,001 members, an increase of 1,536. The largest gain was shown by Rebekah lodges, the auxiliary organization made up of women. At the end of the year they had a membership of 347,223, an increase of 24,576.
Gem Rebekah lodge, No. 22, observed the fifty-sixth anniversary of its founding with a program of music and speeches at its hall, 408 Grand avenue, last night. Refreshments were served and dancing followed. The original anniversary date was Friday night, but the lodge did not meet until last night.

ADJUTANT GENERAL GIVES VIEWS OF INSPECTION

30,000 ACRES IN THE TRACT

State Guard Officer After Spending Week With Inspectors Favors Monroe County Site

Adjutant General Boardman of the Wisconsin militia thinks the government will buy the 30,000 acres between Sparta and Tunnel City for a permanent range. He returned with Col. Salsman from the inspection trip to Madison after a week spent with representatives of the war department inspecting the tract of land and it is believed that the army officers will recommend that it be purchased. An appropriation of $150,000 is understood to be available for the purpose. When the appropriation was made it was believed that land would be purchased near Camp Douglas for a range, but it is now thought that the army officers consider the Sparta land more desirable. Congressman John J. Esch of La Crosse accompanied the inspection party. Col. Robert E. McCoy of Sparta, inspector of small arms practice of the Wisconsin national guard, acted as guide on the trip over the range and Maj. Charles R. Williams of Camp Douglas, quartermaster of the guard, was a member of the party. The war department was represented by Lieut. Col. Samuel E. Allen of the coast artillery, Major "Bentley" Mott of the field artillery, and Capt. Winfield S. Overton of a battery now encamped on the range. The representatives of the war department will probably make their report and recommendation to the war department within a few weeks and if it is favorable, the land will be purchased and a permanent range established on it next year.

than could be added to gross earnings by adhering to an old scale, and above all that the general public have an interest that transcends the united interest of labor and capital—then practical headway will be made. "But to do this both Mr. Bryan and Mr. Beveridge will first have to rise as far above their present position, as it will be necessary for them to raise labor and capital above the dead level of selfish purpose, where everything else is obscured. They will first have to meet and agree to take the question out of politics. When they quit playing politics with the combined employer and the combined labor union, and from high spirited motives seek to end the costly turmoil, fostered by class distrust then they will be moving in the direction of deserving well of their fellow men.

"If these two eloquent gentlemen really sincerely desire to advance the condition of the country, and put an end to the dreadful drain on the resources of the country, made by strikes and lockouts, they can achieve some success by contributing toward lifting the labor question out of politics and applying common sense to the subject. It takes some courage to do this. For instance both Mr. Bryan and Mr. Beveridge would have to make it clear to both labor and capital that they do not fear the influence of either at the polls. Then they would have to make it equally clear that they are actuated by high motives and mean equally well by both sides.

"I hope both will, in time see their way to do it. But I have my doubts."

STARVES WHILE FOOD IS AT HAND

YORK, Pa., Sept. 23.—Surrounded by an abundance of tempting food, Jeremiah H. Yempe, after 21 years, literally starved to death in his home here. For many days not a scrap of food and no liquid whatever had passed his lips. Thirst and hunger reduced him to a state of complete exhaustion until death freed him today. An incurable malady of the throat made it impossible for Yempe to take food or drink. Friends and neighbors, knowing that the young man was sick, sent to his bedside delicacies of every description, but he could not more than look upon them.

A wireless message from Cape Sable reported the ship in latitude 40.57 north and longitude 65.54 west with the wind from the southwest and the sea calm.

The big turbines are not being pushed, the speed for the first day averaging twenty-two knots.

ENROLLMENT OF THE HIGH SCHOOL LARGER

SEPTEMBER CLASS THIS YEAR REACHES 393

LAST SEASON IT WAS 376

City Schools Expect to Put in a Prosperous Year; Season's High School Enrollment.

The September enrollment at the La Crosse high school this year is 393 as compared to an enrollment of 376 for September last year, showing an increase of seventeen pupils. The enrollment last year, including the February class was 471, and when the February class of 1908 is enrolled it is expected by Superintendent J. P. Bird that this figure will be exceeded.

The enrollment for the grade schools has not been figured out as yet, but it is confidently expected that the figures will show a decided increase over last season.

MILK CAN DIRTY

ming station at Newburg's corners. On Saturday the inspector paid a visit to the Rutz farm, collected the evidence and brought the complaint today.

Wife Away; Cans Dirty.

The older Rutz pleaded that his son's wife had failed to wash the cans, but that the son, in absence of his wife, had rinsed the receptacles with cold water. However, this did not satisfy the inspector, and the accumulation of filth showed laxity in the cleaning of the cans, and the complaint was brought.

When informed that the fine and costs amounted to near $28, the elder Rutz slowly peeled off bills to the amount from a large wallet. He entered the plea of guilty for his son, and paid the fine. The son had authorized him "to settle" the case.

Prosecution of the skimming station on a charge of receiving an unlawful article, in dirty milk, is liable, if the practice is not stopped and the management of the station compels farmers to keep clean cans.

Dirty Cream Cans. Henry Schriener, a farmer residing near Sparta, paid a fine of $25 and costs Saturday, on a plea of guilty to having dirty cream cans. A large accumulation of filth was found in these cream receptacles. Schriener pleaded guilty and paid the fine, promising to be more careful in the future.

Watered His Milk. William Nelson, Vernon county, admitted that he had watered his milk, when arraigned last Friday, on complaint of Inspector Larson, and paid the minimum fine, $25 and costs.

During the last two weeks Inspector Larson has brought several prosecutions in various parts of the state for failure to obey the pure food laws.

"People are paying thirty cents a pound and more for butter and are entitled to a clean product and are not getting it," the inspector informed Mr. Rutz. "With this high price for butter, farmers ought to furnish pure milk in clean cans.

"The skimming stations and creameries may be prosecuted hereafter, if they continue to accept milk from dirty cans. Farmers are partly to blame, for there are hundreds of cleansing powders on the market which will keep cans clean and bright, and prevent disease. Then the creameries and skimming stations ought to inspect the cans and see that the receptacles are sanitary. I am not making any threats, but I have the power to prosecute people who accept dirty milk."

Inspector Larson said there were no more cases in La Crosse county at present, but he plans to swoop down on suspected farmers again in a few days, and keep milk in the county to a high standard of quality and cleanliness.

CHICKEN COOP IS GUARDED BY GHOST

BURLINGTON, N. J., Sept. 23.—It has remained for the farmers about Bridgeboro to discover the commercial value of a ghost. It was two weeks ago that news of the ghost being sighted by a young farmer spread through the town and countryside. Since that evening not a chicken coop or a watermelon patch within a five miles radius of Bridgeboro has been raided.

HUGGINS DAMAGE SUIT IS ON TODAY

DIFFICULTY EXPERIENCED IN GETTING A JURY

WITNESS TELLS OF ACCIDENT

Street Railway Company Will Likely Claim Victim Was Professional Personal Injury Victim

Difficulty was encountered in circuit court this morning in securing a jury to try the action of Jay D. Huggins, 1126 Vine street, administrator of the estate of Benjamin H. Huggins, who was thrown from a car of the La Crosse City Railway company on April 13, and died from his injuries. Five thousand dollars is asked for the death of Huggins by his heirs.

That the veniremen plan to attend the La Crosse Interstate fair this week was in evidence this morning, when several admitted they were prejudiced, or had formed an opinion of the merits of the case. They were excused, but about 11 o'clock a jury was secured. Following are the twelve men to hear the case:

Martin Kaiser, J. E. Raney, C. L. Weiss, John Burbach, Christian Eckert, John Stevenson, W. H. Emily, Alvin Kaiser, Edward Cordell, A. Wright, Edward Sheridan, and R. C. Wallace. In previous cases, which have been exploited in the newspapers, veniremen have failed to express an opinion, but this morning a storm of admissions of prejudice and bias were given, during the examination of prospective jurors.

Case Was Going Fast.

Fred Johnson, a painter, 417 North Fifteenth street, who was on the car with Huggins at the time he was injured fatally, and picked up the unconscious man, was the first witness. He described the accident, occurring on the Main street curve, between Fifth and Sixth street. He testified that the car was moving at unusual speed, and that he was thrown against the door, when the car struck the curve. He did not know whether Huggins struck on his head and shoulders or on his feet. When he picked the victim up, he was unconscious. Johnson was unable to give the speed of the car in miles, but swore that it was traveling faster than usual. He often rides in this branch of the line, and is familiar with the ordinary speed of the cars.

Minnie Hettlinger, 1301 State street, also testified during the morning. She was a passenger on the car, and described the speed at which the vehicle was moving and the fall of Huggins. This afternoon, Joseph Kujawa, of 1534 Pine street, a passenger on the car with Huggins, was placed on the stand. He related the accident. Kujawa swore that Huggins struck on his head and knuckles, and that the street car did not stop until the east side of sixth street was reached. "The conductor made a grab for Huggins, when the car struck the curve, but missed him," said the witness. "Then he rang the bell three times."

Theodore Exel, 1428 Farwell street, testified to the same things as Kujawa in general, but thought that Huggins struck on his heels first and then on his head. He also was a passenger on the rear platform.

The defense of the company probably will be that Huggins assumed the risk of being thrown off, when he stood on the rear platform, and there was room inside. The company has signs posted about each platform, informing passengers that they stand on the platform at their own risk of personal injury.

The company also may claim that Huggins was a professional personal injury victim, and was seeking an opportunity to fall from a car or be injured to bring a suit for damages. Reports of this nature abounded in circuit court this morning, and also on Saturday when the case was called. It is said that Huggins was injured in a previous accident, but a settlement was made with the company.

Attorney A. E. Bleekman, Jr., is bringing the action for the Huggins heirs. He is assisted by Humphrey V. Barton, a St. Paul, Minn., attorney, who has had considerable experience and is a specialist in personal injury cases. Woodard & Lees are defending the La Crosse City Railway company.

WAUSAU CLAIMS BADGER PENNANT

FILE OFFICIAL PROTEST ON THREE GAMES LOST

CLAIM VICTORY IS CERTAIN

Contests Turned Over to National Association and If Upheld Victory Is Theirs

With the close of the Wisconsin League season Sunday, formal announcement was made by the management of the Wausau club that a claim would be made for the pennant on the grounds that three games should be forfeited to Wausau. Two protests are directed against Freeport and one against Green Bay.

One of the games in dispute is that with Freeport last Fourth of July, when Umpire Anderson put Ives out of the game in the third inning. The Freeport team continued to play with eight men. Rules provide that no team can play unless it is able to have the full number of players, in uniform on the field. Freeport won the game.

Green Bay's victory is protested on the grounds that Miller, who was released from a major league team, had no contract with the club thirty days before the close of the season. All the games have been referred to the national association.

The Wausau management claims that Secretary Farrell of the national association says his unofficial opinion is that the protest about the game of the Fourth of July will be upheld, as the rule is one which the league has always supported.

With the three games protested and the victory of Sunday over Fond du Lac, 6 to 1, Wausau will have the lead, if upheld. The present standing, as published without considering the protests, is Wausau won 77, lost 44, per cent. .636. Freeport has won 79, lost 41, per cent. .658. Four additional games would give Wausau, 81 games won, while the three games removed from their losing column would make 41 lost, thus giving them the lead by a good margin. Wausau would then have .664 to Freeport's .642.

JURY CAN'T AGREE

HANSON CASE IS STILL UNDECIDED

Man Charged With Desertion May Get New Trial

A disagreement was reported by the jury, which had charge of the fate of Albert Hanson, charged with wife desertion. The case went to the jury at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, and a verdict of disagreement was reported about 11 o'clock that night. Twelve hours of deliberation were not enough for the jury to form a decision, of either guilty or an acquittal.

Hanson, it is alleged, deserted his wife in June, 1905, and was arrested at Big Timber, Mont., in October of the same year. He claimed he was in Montana for the benefit of his health when arrested.

During the trial, Hanson charged that his wife had made an attempt to poison him.

It is doubtful whether Hanson will be tried again. He has been convicted once, and the last trial, just closed, resulted in the disagreement.

a kind of arbitration that has the government stamp on it to make it genuine, what do you think we ought to do?"

"Arbitrate," was the unanimous response of the operators.

Small declared that the strike has already cost the Western Union $10,000,000. He intimated that this fact has broken the determination of President Clowry not to arbitrate. So complete is the tie-up that the companies are weakening, and it is declared that on Wednesday a general strike closing every office in the city of New York will be ordered, unless peace negotiations are begun.

S.S.S. NATURE'S TONIC

Every one should take a tonic in the Spring; their systems require it. The blood has become thick and sluggish with the accumulations left in the system from the inactive, indoor life and from the heavy, rich foods of the Winter season. The blood, being in this unnatural and disordered condition, is unable to furnish the body with the increased amount of nourishment necessary for the more energetic life of Spring and Summer, and the system suffers from debility, weakness, nervousness, indigestion, loss of appetite, and many other unpleasant symptoms of a disordered blood circulation. When the system is in this run-down and disordered condition it is not safe to take unknown concoctions, sarsaparillas, compounds, etc., because they usually contain potash or some other equally strong and harmful mineral ingredient, which acts unfavorably and often dangerously on the depleted, weakened system at a time when it needs gentle and natural stimulation to throw off the impurities and recuperate its lost energy. S. S. S. is appropriately called Nature's tonic. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks from the great storehouse of forest and field, selected for their purifying and health-restoring qualities, and as it does not contain the slightest trace of mineral in any form it is perfectly safe for young or old. S. S. S. acts directly on the blood, ridding it of all impurities and poisons, and restoring the lost properties of rich, nutritive strength so that it is able to supply the system with the healthful, invigorating energy needed to pass the trying season of the year. Its action is the most pleasant, prompt and satisfactory of all tonics, and those who feel the need of such a medicine will do well to commence the use of S. S. S. at once. S. S. S. restores lost energy, relieves the tired, worn-out feeling, helps the appetite, aids digestion, and adds tone and vigor to the system. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Cupid Tries His Wings.

In the bachelor apartment on the top floor of the Riverside court Paul Laurison paced restlessly up and down. Occasionally he stopped to look out at the spring landscape and sighed.

"You'll be all right now, my boy," was the doctor's parting shot. "Just take plenty of fresh air. Get up on the roof as often as you can."

"Confound the roof!" muttered Paul, but he took his overcoat and went up. In the apartment below the bachelors, her eyes red with weeping, Sylvia Randall was washing out a lingerie waist.

"It's mean of Sarah not to come today," she complained, regarding her shriveled fingers ruefully. "She knew I had to have this waist done up. And now I've got to go up on the roof myself and hang the thing out to dry."

But before she went up Sylvia stopped to obliterate the effect of tears and to throw a scarf jauntily over her head.

"I might meet some one," she explained, with a demure little smile at her reflection in the mirror.

A strong wind whistling over the housetops snatched the waist from Sylvia's hands just as she was pinning it to the line and would have carried it over the edge of the roof had not help come unexpectedly.

"Oh, thank you—thank you, so much," exclaimed Sylvia. Then, noticing how good looking her benefactor was, she stopped in confusion.

"You're very welcome, I'm sure," answered Paul, lifting his hat and resuming his constitutional.

"It's—it's my own waist, you see," stammered Sylvia.

Paul turned.

"Is it, indeed?" he replied. "Then I'm doubly glad I rescued it."

"I mean, I laundered it for myself. I don't go out. Sarah didn't come. I didn't think there'd be any one up here."

At this Paul burst into a laugh that even Sylvia in her embarrassment found contagious.

"I see," he said, "you are the queen in the garden, hanging out the clothes."

Sylvia assumed an injured look.

"You know that isn't right," she corrected. "It was the maid who was in the garden."

"Honest, was it?" asked Paul. "I never was much good on poetry. I always thought it was the queen, but I'm delighted to find it is really both."

Without another word Sylvia vanished, leaving Paul transfixed with astonishment.

"How deliciously naive and childlike she is!" he chuckled as he sought a sunny corner in which to stretch his lazy length. Having found one, he smoked a cigarette or two and then fell to scribbling.

What he scribbled remained for Sylvia to discover. This she did the very next morning, for Sarah, the faithless, was still conspicuous by her absence, and there remained a handful of fluffy trifles that had to be laundered.

Sylvia went at the task with commendable resignation. The drying stage reached, with careless indifference to appearances she ran up to the roof bareheaded and bare armed. As no one was in sight this time to rescue articles vagrantly disposed, each piece was pinned to the line with a firmness that defied whirlwinds.

This accomplished, a scrap of paper flapping in the side of the chimney attracted Sylvia's attention. She pulled it out from between the bricks and read the following:

The man was on the housetop
Seeking recreation.
When suddenly the wind changed,
Bringing variation.

The queen was in the rooftop
Hanging out her gown.
Along came a brisk breeze
And blew the thing down.

With a sniff, Sylvia tucked the paper into her belt. Then she picked up one of the little stones with which the roof was covered and tried to mark with it, but without success. A small sharp pointed stick proved equally futile. Suddenly in a corner she found a burned match. Triumphant she scratched a word across the rhymes and then put them back in the chimney.

Here, an hour or two later, Paul found them. So the queen had not come into the garden again, he argued. It was just as well perhaps. He was about to tear up the nonsense when Sylvia's scrawling letters caught his eye.

"Silly," he spelled, and shouted with amusement.

Then he pocketed the missive, so oddly transformed from the ridiculous to the sublime, and sought his favorite corner. There was no sun shining on it today, and the wind was bleak, but he turned up his coat collar and settled down to a smoke and more scribbles.

The latter he soon read aloud:

One bright and sunny morning,
When windy was the weather,
I chanced to meet a young maid,
Sweet as Scottish heather.

I began to compliment,
And she began to cry:
"How-do-you-do and how-do-you-do,
And why do you say goodbye?"

After applauding his own performance Paul got up to deposit the effusion in the friendly chimney crevice. A miniature wash, however, dangling near by suggested other possibilities.

Closer inspection revealed a tiny monogram embroidered in the corner of a cobwebby handkerchief. There were undoubtedly other girls in the house—girls who might have monogram handkerchiefs—but Paul decided to take the risk.

Accordingly he inscribed his rhymes "To S. M." and that he might not be accused of unfairness signed his own initials. He then fastened the fingle with a clothespin to the top of a lace collar. The monogram handkerchief he appropriated.

Later in the afternoon a shower developed unexpectedly, and Sylvia rushed up to the roof. There was no stopping between drops to read nonsense rhymes, so she gathered them in with her washing and hurried downstairs.

"Sillier," was her only comment when she read them in the privacy of her room. Then, the loss of her handkerchief dawning suddenly upon her, she pronounced "P. L." not only a bold, bad poet, but a sneak thief, and for days shunned the roof religiously.

Finally, however, curiosity got the better of her, and she ventured to go up just once more and see what would happen. The prospect wasn't promising. The only person in sight was a trained nurse hanging out blankets.

"I hope no one is very ill," remarked Sylvia.

"Well, he's pretty sick," replied the nurse. "He took cold staying up here on the roof too long after getting over the grip. We're fearful of pneumonia."

Sylvia's heart thumped violently.

"I'm so sorry," she said sympathetically. "Is he delirious?"

The nurse looked at her curiously.

"No, not exactly. He talks in his sleep sometimes. Are you a friend of Mr. Laurison's?"

"I—I know him slightly," stammered Sylvia. Then, after a moment, she added timidly, "Is Mr. Laurison conscious?"

"Oh, yes; he's conscious," begged Sylvia, extracting a little crumpled paper from a mysterious hiding place.

"Don't let him read it till he's better. He'll know who sent it." Then Sylvia made one of her characteristically dramatic exits.

The days that followed stretched solemnly on into weeks. Occasionally Sylvia inquired of the elevator boy how Mr. Laurison was getting on. It seemed an eternity before his lugubrious "About the same, miss," changed to the cheerful "They say he's much better, miss."

No more counsels now with Dame Grundy as to the propriety of trips to the roof. Sylvia went every day—twice a day. She knew that some time she would find him there. When at length she did she almost ran to him for joy, but remembered suddenly that they had met only once before. So she called to him from the distance.

"How do you do, Mr. Laurison?"

Paul started up in his steamer chair and gazed at her in glad surprise.

"Why, how do you do again?" he called cheerily. "Won't you come over and shake hands?"

Sylvia came toward him quickly and extended her little white hand.

"I suppose this is Miss S. R. I have the pleasure of greeting," said Paul, with cordial informality.

"Yes—Sylvia Randall," she answered.

"I like the queen's name," Paul commented, "and wish I could ask her to stay awhile, but I have no throne to offer her."

Without further ceremony Sylvia sat down on the roof and declared herself comfortable.

"I want to thank you, Miss Sylvia," began Paul slowly, "for your message while I was ill. It did me a world of good."

Sylvia looked up at him to see if he was making fun of her, but Paul lay back against the cushions, his eyes apparently closed. From beneath those closed lids, however, he was reveling in the glory of Sylvia's hair and in the color that came and went in her cheeks.

"I wrote it," explained Sylvia humbly, "before I knew you were ill and before I found out that you are a real author."

"And how did you discover that?" inquired Paul.

"In a magazine," answered Sylvia tersely. "It was a good story—much better than your rhymes."

"Well, you see, writing poetry isn't exactly in my line," said Paul, laughing. "I never did it till I met you. But I like it just the same. My two favorite lines are these:

"P. L. was a poet; P. L. was a thief;
P. L. came to my house and stole a handkerchief."

Sylvia hung her head, whether from modesty or amusement Paul couldn't tell.

"The paper they were written on was suspiciously watermarked," he observed. "You didn't really cry, did you?"

"Rain wets things," answered Sylvia laconically. "Besides, what good would it have done to cry? You had my handkerchief."

After this auspicious beginning the chimney postoffice was a wonderfully busy institution, and the old roof woke up all of a sudden to its many romantic possibilities.

"It's truly a garden, isn't it?" whispered Sylvia one night, stealing about in the moonlight with Paul beside her.

"The queen's garden," answered Paul, and Sylvia didn't dispute him.

Then after a minute of silence he added: "Hark! I hear some one trying to get over the garden wall."

"Oh, dear! By the fire escape?" gasped Sylvia.

Paul shook his head.

"Listen!" he urged. "You can hear his wings."

"Oh," laughed Sylvia shyly, "I know now!"

"Shall we help him over?" asked Paul, drawing Sylvia gently to him.

"He doesn't seem to need much help," murmured Sylvia so softly that Paul could hardly hear the words.

OFFER LASTS BUT ONE WEEK

Good Chance for Candidates to Increase Standing

winning the main prizes. The winners of the automobile, the piano and the diamond rings will be determined by the effort put forth this week. Get those promised subscriptions paid up now. It may mean success or defeat to you.

The Importance of Effort.
The $3,500 contest today enters its third week. That it is progressing nicely can be seen by the large number of votes accorded the candidates. The names of contestants and the number of votes accorded each up to 12 o'clock, Saturday, September 21, appears on another page of this paper. Thousands of votes were cast Saturday—too late to appear in today's report. These ballots will appear, to the respective candidates' credit Thursday.

The votes will be published twice a week hereafter, Thursdays and Mondays. The polls for the Thursday count will close at noon Wednesday. Cast your votes before that time if you want them to appear to your credit Thursday.

Don't Forget.
Don't forget about the special offer. It means a great deal to you. Two thousand extra votes will not be picked up every day in this contest. In fact, the offer outlined on another page WILL NOT BE REPEATED. A word to the wise is sufficient.

LEGISLATURE IS SUPREME Court Had no Power to Inquire Into

Motive of Two Cent Fare; Shippers to Enforce New Law

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 23.—Despite the injunction against the application of the commodity rate law that was issued by Judge Lochren in the federal circuit court yesterday, the Minnesota Shippers and Receivers' association is planning to bring proceedings to put the law into effect. A meeting of the association will be held Wednesday morning to determine on a course of action.

The association decided in August to bring criminal prosecutions against the roads, but deferred the matter until after the hearing before Judge Lochren.

Attorney General Young said an attempt would be made to secure a speedy determination of the state rights and the jurisdiction of the federal circuit court, which he says must ultimately be determined by the supreme court.

In a local paper Gov. Johnson is quoted as criticizing Judge Lochren for his arraignment of the Minnesota legislature.

"The court indulged in unusual procedure in my judgment," said the governor, "in questioning the motives of the legislature in the enactment of railroad rate laws. The legislative arm of government is as supreme in all its functions as the judicial can be in any of its functions. I maintain that in the adjudication of this or any other questions recourse to the courts is the unalienable right of all interested parties; and courts would more surely win the respect of state officers and citizens by recognizing the rights that belong to a co-ordinate branch of the government."

"I believe in the right of the state legislature to regulate interstate business, and in this particular instance believe the legislature was actuated by the highest and best motives. If the courts finally determine the reduction made in existing rates was too high the people must necessarily abide by the decision. But until this is determined after a complete trial based on the facts as well as on the law, I shall remain of the opinion that the rates made by the legislature are not confiscatory and that the legislature was within its rights in the establishment of such rates."

NORTHWEST BRIEFS

PLUM VALLEY, Minn.—This place has only one woman and one young girl within its borders to represent the feminine portion of the world's population. Bachelors are numerous, but they seem to lack the push and energy to go away from home and bring back helpmeets. The village authorities are contemplating levying a tax on them, the proceeds to be used in advertising the village in eastern towns, where spinsters are numerous and are seeking good openings as housewives.

DELANO, Minn.—About two months ago Delus Beekman, aged 15 years, was frightfully burned with gasoline, and in order to complete his recovery skin grafting has been resorted to. Volunteers among his schoolmates were called for, and fifteen responded. The boy is now in the hospital at Montrose, and several of his schoolmates go every few days to part with sufficient cuticle for the grafting operation. Among the volunteers were several girls.

MOORHEAD, Minn.—The double track between Staples and Rat Lake, this side of Detroit, has been completed. This improvement gives the Northern Pacific a long stretch of double track and will aid greatly in the movement of the crops.

HURON, S. D.—Incoming trains from the east and south Wednesday, Thursday and Friday brought the largest number of land-seekers to this city that have arrived at any time during the year; in fact, the crowd was one of the largest in five years. They came from all parts of the east, south and southwest. Some are looking for investments, while a large number are in search of farms for permanent residences.

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia.—Dr. H. L. Getz, former president of the International Association of Railway Surgeons and city physician of Marshalltown, attempted to commit suicide Saturday at the railway station at West Liberty by stabbing himself over the heart. It is feared he will die. He is believed to be insane. He has been out of an asylum about a year.

FARIBAULT, Minn.—Judgment has been filed in the clerk of the court's office in the Devil Creek ditch case. The decision is in favor of the petitioners, who appealed from the report of the county commissioners. The ditch will be constructed as specified in the report of the civil engineer. It runs through Morristown and Shieldsville townships and is long.

DULUTH, Minn.—Ernest Hendrickson, a boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hendrickson, was drowned in a pool of water near his home. The heavy rains of the last few days had made a pond of an excavation, and young Hendrickson and another lad were playing on a raft, when the former fell in and was drowned before he could be rescued.

DULUTH, Minn.—A Duluth man brought what was necessary of three wolves to the county auditor and claimed and was paid the bounty. The auditor made some inquiries about where the wolves were killed and he was told in Duluth. Further inquiry brought forth the information that the wolves were in a cage at the White City in Duluth last summer and the owner had killed them to get the bounty rather than keep them over winter. The auditor was in doubt whether to pay the bounty, but he did.

PRISONERS TO WORK

MANKATO, Sept. 23.—The county board has taken action to co-operate with the city of Mankato in carrying out a plan to have prisoners in the county jail, who are sentenced to hard labor, perform that labor. A guard is to be hired, and the expense divided between the city and county. It is likely that the prisoners will be put to work on the roads. It is expected to reach the class of idlers who would rather be in jail than work for their support outside. The results of the plan are being awaited with interest.

Muggins—"My wife spent two hours last night telling me what she thought of me." Bugbins—"Two hours? Gee! she must think a lot of you. My wife can generally tell me what she thinks of me in two minutes."

NORTH SIDE

HUNTERS RETURN WITH MUCH GAME

A number of North side hunters spent Sunday at their favorite sport and the majority returned with full bags of game. The squirrels and rabbits are unusually plentiful this year and the hunter, owing to the scarcity of the nuts, does not have to go far to find them. According to reports that have been brought to this city by farmers the amount of food is unusually scarce this year and as a consequence of the shortage the squirrels are coming nearer the city. It is reported that the squirrels are crossing the river both above and below. A number of men returned yesterday with a number of ducks. The cold weather that has prevailed in this vicinity for the last week is driving the ducks south. The mudhens, according to old sportsmen, are thicker this year than they have been for some time.

CARNIVAL OVER; WAS REAL SUCCESS

Saturday saw the last of this year's North side carnival, and it was throughout a decided success. Owing to a couple of rainy evenings the receipts were not quite as large as they would have been otherwise, but aside from this the carnival was entirely successful, and highly pleased the North side business men.

One of the features of the carnival Friday was the free visit of forty Tribune carrier boys to the Salome, Kansas Cyclone and other attractions. The little fellows gathered at the south side and were taken to the North side, where they were joined by the North side carriers. They very much enjoyed the shows and the streets resounded with their yell, which was "T-R-I-B-U-N-E, Tribune."

C. P. Thompson, secretary, and L. E. Lavaque, president, of the North Side Amusement association have nothing but the highest praise of the carnival and it was without a doubt the best ever seen in La Crosse.

Most of the shows left either Saturday night or Sunday over different roads. Part of the company went from here to Ottumwa, Iowa, and the rest to Springfield, Ill.

Managed O'Connor, representing Ketchell, is willing for the bout, but doubts if his man can make 142 pounds, the weight asked by Gans. Jimmy Corfiroth instantly bid for the fight and said that Ketchell could have a return match with Thomas first, if he preferred, the winner to meet Gans. Ketchell weighed 147½ in the go with Thomas on Labor day.
